

MORETHANFIVE™ TABLES

Partners in Modern Craft.

Michael Young and the Coalesse Design Group collaborated to take another form (and material) into surprising new territory. While the LessThanFive™ chairs convey ‘lightness’ and mobility, a strong, heavy table could be juxtaposed as the foundation that anchors a room. That pairing led to the exploration of cast iron for its natural weight and stability. A substantial table emerges that looks deceptively light — sturdy yet sinuous; engineered yet effortless. And in common with carbon fiber — cast iron’s endless craft-ability, into any form imaginable. In extremes of weight and materiality, these opposites do attract.

More with Less.

Expanding the family of LessThanFive™ chairs, the MoreThanFive™ Table introduces cast iron as a counterpoint to carbon fiber in a pairing of powerful extremes. An elemental material made extraordinary through modern craft. Lightness and weight redefined.

Lightweight and easy to move, LessThanFive™ guest chairs make reconfiguring spaces effortless.

Supporting Cast.

The fluid lines and novel construction of the cast iron base echo the seamless shape of LessThanFive™ chairs for a perennial pairing. Cast iron, one of nature's oldest, heaviest materials is made to look deceptively light, counterbalancing the near weightless properties of modern carbon fiber in a delightfully crafted design puzzle.

Common to both carbon fiber and cast iron is endless craft-ability, with a freedom of form and superior function that could only be realized through these materials.

———— Michael Young, in collaboration with the Coalesse Design Group, looked to the material and design challenge that originated with LessThanFive's carbon fiber construction to find a companion worthy of the beloved chairs.

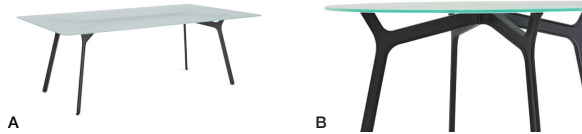

———— Through its seamless lines and intended choice of a translucent frosted glass tabletop, MoreThanFive™ tables are made to look deceptively light.

Craft Companions.

The MoreThanFive™ table has the art and craft to stand out in many spaces, increasing the pleasure of working together from café to conference room, or any other social or collaborative setting. Choices of clear coat or two paint finishes for the base and frosted glass or satin laminate tabletops expand choice for many creative combinations.
